To Love

To Lose

A wheelchair so full of life,
now sits empty.

A bedroom that was busy with everyday smiles and laughter
in the morning
Now Silent.

Our Hearts that were full now empty.

Our memories full of good times
but just memories of someone we will never see again.

I want more memories with you!

But Jesus wanted you more.

He called you home
to have His hugs,
to have his perfect love.
To dance the dances, you couldn't dance here.
to have a body made whole.

He called you, Keith, to be with HIM

“ Keith my friend, my brother. I will forever be thankful for you and what knowing you taught me. I covet the memories of the times I got to help care for you, for you parents teaching me how to care for you, and your patience with me while I learned. You taught me how to listen without words. You showed me true strength. You laughed and smiled, you had joy in your situation. For anyone and all that took the time to hear you, we are better people for it. Your parents taught all that watched what true service to another meant, what absolute dedication to our children looks like. The joy you shared in music with your father was a beautiful thing. Your smile above all else will always be at the center of my grief over your step into glory. Keith in our own hearts we wish you were still here. We know you are healed, standing tall and singing before the Lord. But to have you absent from us is so painful. Keith you taught my kids that different didn't mean bad or scary. You taught them to so you, and others with disabilities as they see any other person. You taught them how to listen with their eyes. You taught them how to make friends and become close with people that are different than them. My brother the mccroskey family loves you, and we look forward to the day we step into glory and see you again. Save us a seat at the table, we have a lot to talk about.

“ Keith, I met you when you were 12. From day one you proved you had no fear, and just wanted to thrive. You had the best sense of humor, and the little grunt before you burst our laughing will never be forgotten. You made everyone feel welcome because as anyone entered the room, you looked their way and gave a big grin as if to say, “I’ve been waiting for you”. You loved the blazers more than anyone I know, and took Lakers jokes quite well. I remember skiing with you, Camping together, Christmas parties and more. 38 years of memories will never be forgotten. Miss you my friend! Fly free
