“ I first met Ron as I walked my dog, Cherry, in the Barclay Hills area, near Mountain View Cemetery. Ron helped me understand the history of the area and how it relates to the larger Northwest Territory. He was a great teacher; I learned "stuff" without really knowing I'd been in "class." I remember once walking my dog near the falls and finding Ron quietly contemplating the area above the falls. "What's up?" I enquired. He never looked at me, but replied: "Well, Don, I was wondering about the steamboat that exploded here in 18XX (I wasn't that good a student to remember the date, now). He then showed me the nearly forgotten brass plate commemorating the disaster. Lorien, you may remember me from Clackamas Community College Theatre days.
